Obama Blasts GOP on Jobs Bill

President: Be ready to act or be run out of town by voters

Washington

A combative President Obama challenged a divided Congress on Thursday to unite behind his $447 billion jobs bill or get ready to be run "out of town" by angry voters. Hoping to use public frustration and economic worry as leverage, he called his proposal an insurance plan against a painful return to recession.

In a news conference long on restatements of his ideas, Obama laid bare the dynamic that now is Washington: The era of compromise is over.

Frustrated over getting nowhere with Republicans, Obama demanded that they explain themselves to the country and promised to keep "hammering away until something gets done."

Despite Obama's taunts, Republicans showed no signs of switching positions. Instead, they pressed for a symbolic vote so they could oppose the bill the president sub-

Speaking at a forum just about the same time as Obama, House Speaker John Boehner said the president had decided to "give up on governing, give up on leading." Said Boehner: "We're legislating. He's campaigning."

Obama's news conference marked a continuation of his recent feistiness, and his party's pre-election-year attempt to depict Republicans as protectors of the rich at the expense of the jobless.

When asked about his willingness to negotiate to help the millions of unemployed, Obama said he had gone out of his way every time with Republicans, to little avail.

"The question, then, is, will Congress do something?" the president said. "If Congress does something, then I can't run against a do-nothing Congress. If Congress does nothing, then it's not a matter of me running against them. I think the American people will run them out of town because they are frustrated." BEN FELLER (AP)

American Dream Lapses

Census says housing suffers worst drop since the Depression

Washington

The American dream of homeownership has felt its biggest drop since the Great Depression, according to new 2010 census figures released Thursday.

The analysis by the Census Bureau found the homeownership rate fell to 65.1 percent last year — or 76 million occupied housing units that were owned by their residents. While that level remains the second-highest decennial rate, analysts say the U.S. may never return to its mid-decade housing boom peak in which nearly 70 percent of occupied households were owned by their residents.

The reason: a longer-term economic reality of tighter credit, pro-

Mortgage Rates Drop

Mortgage rates are now lower than they were in the early 1950s. The average rate on a 30-year fixed mortgage has fallen below 4 percent for the first time in history. For the lucky few with good jobs and stable finances, it's a rare opportunity to save potentially thousands of dollars each year. For most people, it's a tease and a reminder of how weak their own financial situations are. The average rate on a 15-year fixed loan, a popular refinancing option, dipped to 3.26 percent, also a record. (AP) longed job losses and reduced government involvement.

Unemployed young adults are least likely to own, delaying first-time home purchases to live with Mom and Dad. Middle-aged adults ages 35 to 64, mostly homeowners who were hit with mortgage foreclosures or bankruptcy after the housing bust in 2006, are at their lowest levels of ownership in decades.

Measured by race, the homeownership gap between whites and blacks is now at its widest since 1960, wiping out more than 40 years of gains.

"The changes ... are mind-boggling: the housing market has completely crashed, and attitudes toward housing are shifting from owning to renting," said Patrick Newport, economist with IHS Global Insight. "While 10 years ago owning a home was the American dream, I'm not sure a lot of people still think that way." HOPE YEN (AP)

NATO: No Timeline to End Libya Mission

Withdrawal to come soon, officials say, as fighting continues

Brussels

NATO leaders said Thursday that they would continue carrying out airstrikes in Libya and patrolling its coastline because of ongoing resistance from forces loyal to deposed leader Moammar Gadhafi.

NATO's political leadership said it would end military operations in Libya "soon" but emerged from two days of meetings in Belgium without a clear decision on how to wind down the war.

Though Gadhafi remains in hiding, some U.S. and NATO officials said it would be a mistake to withdraw from Libya as long as fighting continues in Sirte and Bani Walid, two cities still under the control of pro-Gadhafi forces.

Anders Fogh Rasmussen, the NATO secretary general, said the threat to civilians from Gadhafi loyalists was "fading away," but he was vague about when NATO would end involvement in the conflict.

NATO is carrying out airstrikes daily, though revolutionary forces swept into Tripoli in August and took control of most of Libya. But the attacks have slackened: NATO reported 21 airstrikes Tuesday, half the number of two weeks ago.

NATO needs a better assessment of risk for Libyan civilians before a withdrawal, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta said. The U.S. led the initial airstrikes in March.

The 28-member alliance operates by consensus, so all countries must endorse any decisions. CRAIG WHITLOCK (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Meanwhile ...

Moammar Gadhafi called on Libyans to take to the streets and wage a campaign of civil disobedience against the country's new leaders Thursday, the first word from the fugitive leader in about two weeks. "Be courageous, rise up, go out in the streets," he said. Gadhafi made the appeal in an audio recording, though it was not possible to verify his identity. It was broadcast on Syrian-based Al-Rai TV, which has become the mouthpiece of his resistance. (AP)

Abbas Calls On Europe To Support Statehood

Strasbourg, France

Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas has appealed to European countries to recognize a Palestinian state, saying "there is no more appropriate time" than now.

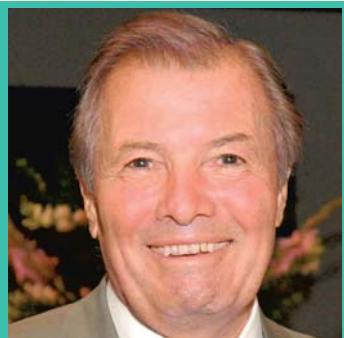

Abbas addressed the parliament of the 47-member Council of Europe on Thursday after applying two weeks ago for U.N. recognition, despite a threatened U.S. veto in the Security Council.

Seventeen members of the Council of Europe have recognized the state based on 1967 borders with Israel, Abbas said. The assembly is made up of lawmakers in Europe — not to be confused with the EU's Parliament — and focuses on human rights.

In the face of U.S. support for a return to negotiations, and a tricky political calculus in the Security Council, Abbas' appeal amounted to a pitch to hold and strengthen support among Europeans he sees as supportive. (AP)

Apple's Steve Jobs is remembered by his devotees using his legacy of gadgets

Appreciation

He was a conjurer, a modern magician who reached into tomorrow and came up with things that changed millions of lives. And as people gathered at Apple stores from Sydney to San Francisco to mourn Steve Jobs, the feeling was more than mourning for an executive or even an inventor. It was something closer to awe for a wizard.

On Thursday, the admirers who turned his technological marvels into everyday tools grieved his loss through devices that before his time, or without his vision, would have been considered beyond humanity's reach.

"Steve Jobs," the Apple CEO's biography, will be published Oct. 24, Simon and Schuster said, instead of mid-November.

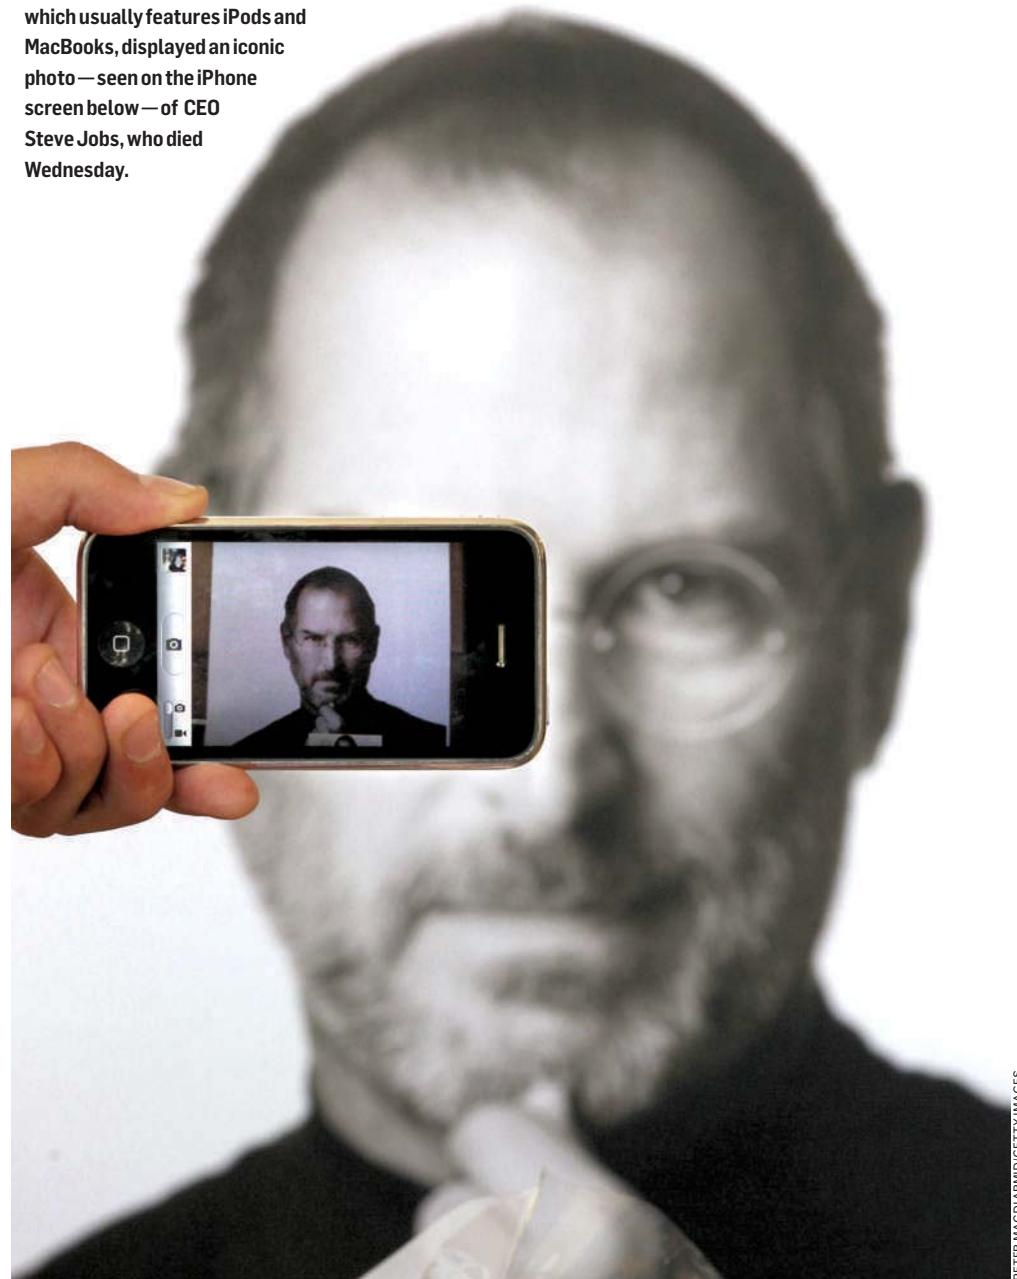

A decade ago, the only ones who carried their music around were tech geeks, music obsessives and those willing to tote a clunky CD player. Presto: The iPod, and everyone wanted one.

Five years ago, cell phones had hinges, and the displays looked more like the age of Atari than the age of the Internet. Texting was mostly cryptography, tapping strings of numbers to make words. Presto: The iPhone, and everyone wanted one of those, too.

Two years ago, the economy had just tanked, and it was hard enough for companies to persuade people to buy the things they needed. Getting people to buy a product they didn't need was out of the question. Most people had a desktop, or a laptop, or a smartphone. And yet, presto: the iPad.

Nothing up his sleeve. Though Jobs once reached into the tiny fifth pocket of his trademark blue jeans at an Apple event and fished out an iPod Nano, just

On Thursday, the Apple website, which usually features iPods and MacBooks, displayed an iconic photo—seen on the iPhone screen below—of CEO Steve Jobs, who died Wednesday.

High-Tech & Low-Tech Tributes to Jobs

► Washington: Outside Apple's retail store in Tysons Corner Center, the first the company opened in the country, two bouquets of white roses rested on a wall near a stark black hat with an Apple logo. Mourners affixed Post-Its on the window of the Apple Store in Arlington, Va.

► Tokyo: In the Ginza shopping district, people held up iPhones and iPads displaying candles.

► Syria: Seven months into an uprising, people paused to take pride in Jobs, whose father was born in Homs. "This shows that this country can produce geniuses, if only we had freedoms instead of a suffocating dictatorship," said Sara, a 23-year-old Syrian student. (TWP/AP)

"He was one of a kind. He was able to take these boring computer items and make them accessible, usable and very sexy."

— JORUND SKURDAL, OF OSLO, NORWAY, SPEAKING ABOUT STEVE JOBS' LEGACY.

to emphasize how small the gadget was. They always were. Ever smaller, ever sleeker, ever cooler.

One day after his death, two days after Apple introduced the latest incarnation of a touch-screen phone that touched pop culture, sadness and admiration poured out—not for a rock star, not for a religious figure, but for an American corporate executive.

"He was a genius," Rosario Hidalgo said outside an Apple Store on the Upper West Side of Manhattan while her daughter, 21-month-old Carlotta, used an iPhone to play with an app that teaches children to match animal sounds to animal pictures.

For people who grew up in a world where iPod headphones are as ubiquitous as wristwatches were to an earlier generation, Jobs was remembered as their Elvis Presley or John Lennon. Perhaps even their Thomas Edison.

"It's like the end of the innovators," said Scott Robbins, 34, who rushed to an Apple Store in San Francisco when he heard the news.

In announcing Jobs' death Wednesday, Apple remembered him as a "visionary and creative genius." The company announced no cause of death, but Jobs had been diagnosed with a rare pancreatic cancer seven years ago and had a liver transplant in 2009. He was 56. JORDAN ROBERTSON AND RACHEL METZ (AP) these trips more convenient and affordable. But first, folks need to know it exists.

Despite news reports and the fliers with free ride coupons that were sent to thousands of households, many people are still in the dark about their expanded options.

On Wednesday, the driver on my ride had to pitch the service to passengers waiting for Metrobuses at their shared stops: "Are you headed down Good Hope Road? Come with me!" And there were plenty of different questions for him to answer.

But once the passengers finally got on, their reactions were pretty much the same. "This is quicker and faster. Once people find out, they won't be waiting for the 90 anymore," said 57-year-old Clifton Hines, who estimated he'd get home before the Metrobus even arrived to pick him up. Virgo Darby, 24, enjoyed the peace and quiet of the uncrowded bus, but he suspected word would get out before too long. "And if more people see it, Metro will be out of business," he said. Even 9-year-old Tyree Williams was an immediate convert. "It's got better air-conditioning," Williams declared.

Avon Braxton, of Barry Farm, couldn't heap enough praise on the bus. "It's on time and clean, and there's no graffiti or trash," the 40-year-old marveled. There were two things she'd been hoping for in her neighborhood: a Starbucks ("I want to sit outside and drink my $3 coffee.") and a Circulator route.

For now, she'll settle for the latter. And maybe with more economic opportunity for residents east of the river, that Starbucks will follow.

New Directions

Transportation experts must have various metrics to determine whether a bus route is a success. But I think you have a winner when passengers aren't just boarding — they're boasting. "I'm going to call my dad," 24-year-old Ashley Young announced to me Wednesday as we rode into Anacostia. "He's going to say, 'What do you mean, you're on the Circulator? The Circulator doesn't come here.'"

That changed Monday, when the red buses run by the District Department of Transportation debuted the first route to head east of the Anacostia River. The $1-per-ride system that promises buses every 10 minutes has been immensely popular since it launched in 2005. And these days, the Circulator is hauling passengers on upward of 500,000 trips per month with its five easy-to-navigate routes. But low ridership on the Convention Center-SW Waterfront line persuaded the department to cancel that service and instead send the buses between the Potomac Avenue Metro station and Skyland, via Barracks Row.

Although Metro and Metrobus provide residents east of the river with several connections to the employment, education and other opportunities in the downtown D.C. core, city officials hope the new Circulator route makes

Free Parking: Metro is constructing a more secure area for riders to store bikes in at the College Park rail station. The transit authority said it is installing its first "Bike & Ride" facility, a 2,400-square-foot room with steel mesh walls. The corral will accommodate up to 120 bikes, Metro said. It will feature bright lighting, cameras and card-control access, officials said. Construction is expected to be finished by early next year. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Protestors seek jobs, social justice at event at Freedom Plaza

Washington

A couple hundred social justice protesters launched an "occupation" of Freedom Plaza Thursday, the area's first major demonstration against rising inequality since the Occupy Wall Street movement began last month in New York and spread across the country.

Decrying corporate greed, ineffective political leaders and a rising gap between the haves and the have-nots in the United States, protesters unfurled sleeping bags and raised tents in the public plaza in the shadow of the White House, vowing to stay indefinitely — or until their voices are heard.

"This is what needs to be done to get our voices heard. Congress is not listening," said Matthew Mascolino, 23, who flew in from suburban Chicago to protest. "I've been looking for a job for a year and there's nothing."

Around him, demonstrators beat drums, spread bubbles through the air and carried signs that said "Tax the Rich."

Mascolino carried a sign supporting the "99 Percent" — a slam against the top 1 percent of earners in the United States who take home a quarter of the income.

They ended up massing along H Street in Northwest in front of the heavy carved door of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, chanting "We want jobs! We want jobs!"

They then unfurled a sign in front of the police guarding the entrance that said "Chamber of Corporate Horrors" and left a symbolic sheaf of job applications and resumes.

Many of those in attendance said that they were attending their first-ever protest rally. ANNIE GOWEN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Grandmother Convicted of Murder in Death of 2-Year-Old Girl

Fairfax

A Fairfax County woman accused of tossing her 2-year-old granddaughter over the edge of a 44-foot-high mall walkway was convicted Thursday of first-degree murder, and a jury recommended a sentence of 35 years in prison.

Carmela dela Rosa, 50, had pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

The trial continued Thursday into the penalty phase.

Dela Rosa and her family were on an outing at Tysons Corner Center last November when dela Rosa suddenly picked up Angelyn Ogdock and threw the toddler off a bridge connecting the mall and a parking garage.

Prosecutors had argued that dela Rosa was driven to kill Angelyn by an unremitting anger for the girl's father, James Ogdock, who had gotten dela Rosa's daughter, Kathryn Ogdock, pregnant out of wedlock.

Deputy Public Defender Dawn Butorac countered that dela Rosa's mental health had deteriorated badly in the months leading up to Angelyn's killing and said that she could not fully comprehend what she was doing on the evening of Nov. 29, 2010. JUSTIN JOUVENAL (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Tomas Vokoun, 35, had a .922 save percentage and a 2.55 goals-against average while playing for the Florida Panthers last season.

Top Caps Story Lines

An Ovechkin rebound?

For most NHL players, an 85-point campaign with 32 goals might be a career season. Then there's Alex Ovechkin, whose 32 goals and 53 assists combined for a career low point total for the Russian superstar. He says he's in his best physical shape, but has the league figured Ovie out?

Vokoun vs. Neuvirth vs. Holtby

The goalie wars are about to begin. Tomas Vokoun comes to the Caps as the veteran with the stats you expect out of a No. 1, but 23-year-old Czech Michal Neuvirth hasn't yielded the starting job just yet. And there's a wild card: Braden Holtby, the 21-year-old who impressed in spurts last season and was set to back up Neuvirth until the arrival of Vokoun.

How Boudreau handles the new lineup

After the Caps' second-round exit in four games to the Lightning last year, the fans wanted coach Bruce Boudreau fired. GM George McPhee instead infused the roster with veteran players. If Boudreau can't deliver with a roster many feel is the deepest the Caps have ever had, it might be the end of "Gabby" in D.C.

New Man in the Net

Goalie Vokoun figures the Caps give him one final shot at the title

The Capitals

Tomas Vokoun accepts that his Stanley Cup window is closing.

In four seasons with the Florida Panthers, Vokoun never whiffed a scent of the playoffs despite being one of the NHL's top goaltenders. So he packed his bags and awaited his next destination on July 1 — the start of the NHL's free agency period.

"I'm 35 years old. It's one of the reasons I didn't sign in Florida," he said. "I've been watching the playoffs in the living room on my TV. I don't want to go out [without a Stanley Cup]."

He figured his .922 save percentage and 2.55 goals-against average on a team that lost 40 games in 2010-11 might entice some general managers to

"That was the most important thing — to be on a team that has a chance."

— TOMAS VOKOUN, WHO SIGNED A $1.5M DEAL WITH THE CAPITALS IN THE OFFSEASON.

ask "What if he was on a contender?" and that the offers would flow in.

Instead, the Czech Republic native watched as other goalies garnered multimillion-dollar contracts, particularly Ilya Bryzgalov's monster nine-year, $51 million deal with the Philadelphia Flyers.

Two days into the free agency period, with no offer in sight, Vokoun started to doubt he would sign with an NHL team.

"I was disappointed, but you realize you're not going to get 20 offers in the goalie market," he said.

Then Vokoun ended up in the most unlikely of places, with a team that few thought would go after the veteran — the Washington Capitals.

After the team's falling out with 22-year-old goalie Semyon Varlamov ended in a trade with the Colorado Avalanche, the Capitals approached Vokoun. The offer was a meager $1.5 million, but he felt the chance to play for a Stanley Cup contender balanced that out.

"It's a good, strong team," Vokoun said. "I haven't had a chance to play for a team like that. That was the most important thing — to be on a team that has a chance."

Vokoun is expected to be the Caps' starter for much of the season but is likely to split time with last season's standout, Michal Neuvirth.

After the signing, Capitals coach Bruce Boudreau said Vokoun would come into training camp as the No. 1 goalie, and Vokoun's preseason performance suggests Boudreau's prediction should hold true.

Vokoun gives the Capitals a veteran presence in net, and he could be one of the pieces in the Caps' Stanley Cup puzzle.

"We can say all we want how we have the team to do it," Vokoun said. "But unless we do it, it means nothing." REED S. ALBERS

A Division Worth Watching

Although the Caps have won 4-straight Southeast titles, their opponents aren't slouches.

Winnipeg Jets

LAST YEAR: 34-36-12, 80 points, missed playoffs

KEY ADDITIONS: Eric Fehr, Radek Dvorak, Kyle Wellwood

Winnipeg's players will get to enjoy something most of them didn't during their tenure in Atlanta — fans. Playing in front of a crowd excited to have the NHL back in their city, the Jets aren't a team to be overlooked. With a talented roster featuring Evander Kane, Dustin Byfuglien, Zach Bogosian and Andrew Ladd, the Jets could be tough.

Florida Panthers

LAST YEAR: 30-40-12, 72 points, missed playoffs

KEY ADDITIONS: Ed Jovanovski, Scottie Upshall, Jose Theodore, Sean Bergenheim, Matt Bradley, Tomas Fleischmann

After another season in the basement of the Southeast Division (and the NHL, for that matter), GM Dale Tallon brought in a new group of players — including three former Capitals. This summer's signings show the team's heading in the right direction.

Tampa Bay Lightning

LAST YEAR: 46-25-11, 103 points, second in Southeast Division

KEY ADDITIONS: Matt Gilroy and Bruno Gervais

Following a trip to the Eastern Conference Finals, Tampa GM Steve Yzerman didn't so much add to the team as he did retain his talent. The Bolts re-signed star Steven Stamkos and goalie Dwayne Roloson, and brought in defensive help in Gilroy. It's hard to imagine the Bolts won't be neck-and-neck with the Caps.

Carolina Hurricanes

LAST YEAR: 40-31-11, 91 points, missed playoffs

KEY ADDITIONS: Brian Boucher, Tomas Kaberle, Alexie Ponikarovsky

The 'Canes missed the playoffs by two points last season, but that didn't mean the 2010-11 season was a bust. Goalie Cam Ward remained solid, and rookie sensation Jeff Skinner finished second on the team in points behind captain Eric Staal. The addition of defenseman Kaberle means the 'Canes should be in the playoff mix.

Washington Capitals

LAST YEAR: 48-23-11, 107 points, won division, finished first in Eastern Conference

Another season, another disappointing playoff exit. Instead of firing head coach Bruce Boudreau after their second-round exit to the Tampa Bay Lightning, GM George McPhee took aim at his players and brought in veteran leadership and hard-nosed grinders. And a world-class goaltender at a bargain-bin price doesn't hurt either.

A 'Dream Matchup' for Game 5 of the NLDS

MLB Playoffs

Roy Halladay and Chris Carpenter grew up together with the Toronto Blue Jays, and the BFFs have spent plenty of time competing on golf courses and fishing boats.

The stakes will be much higher when the All-Stars go head-to-head on a mound for the first time Friday night.

It'll be Halladay versus Carpenter in Game 5 with a berth in the NL championship series on the line for the Philadelphia Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals.

"You definitely look forward to it," Halladay said Thursday. "Not only is Chris a good pitcher, but obviously a good friend. We've is. We haven't got a chance to pitch against each other, and if you're going to do it for the first time, might as well be now," he said.

The best buddies already have made offseason plans for a fishing trip. One of them will get a head start on his vacation.

This is a "dream matchup," according to Cardinals manager Tony La Russa, who set it up by pitching Carpenter on three days' rest for the first time in his career in Game 2.

The Phillies, heavy favorites entering the division series, are counting on the ace of their star-studded rotation to outduel his pal and put away those pesky Cardinals. ROB MAADI (AP)

Terps Look to Fine-Tune Offense

NOON
Sat. | ESPNU

Terps Football

Maryland's hurry-up spread offense and Georgia Tech's triple option represent radical deviations from traditional attacks.

Such extreme schemes are difficult to defend but also difficult to perfect, a point made clear by the recent struggles of the Terrapins, in their first year with the offense, and the season-long domination of the Yellow Jackets, four years in.

Maryland's offense, implemented by new coach Randy Edsall and offensive coordinator Gary Crowton, is designed to run play after play after play, no huddles, blending the run and pass and leaving

Dissent Within the Ranks?

After Maryland's third uneven performance in as many weeks, fissures have begun to appear in the locker room, stemming from frustration over coach Randy Edsall's hard-line regime. The Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun reported an anonymous veteran player confiding that many players are chafing at Edsall's disciplinarian approach. The Sun reported that at least one player has sought advice from former coach Ralph Friedgen. D.T.

little time for defensive players to catch their breath, let alone communicate.

When it's right, it's rapid and precise. On opening night against Miami, the Terrapins ran nearly 80 offensive plays and tallied 499 yards of total offense.

But against Temple, Maryland

(2-2, 1-0 ACC) ran just 60 mostly fruitless plays and scored only a single garbage-time touchdown in a 38-7 loss. Frequent three-and-out drives, sometimes taking mere seconds off of the game clock, compounded the struggles of the Terrapins' defense. Radical change, Edsall said, is not instantaneous.

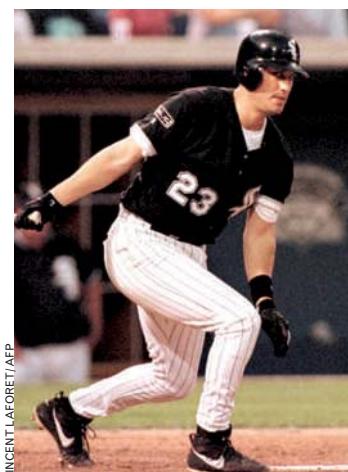

"When we have everybody doing what they're supposed to do, all 11 guys doing that, we're productive," he said. "It's just a consistency factor."

Georgia Tech coach Paul Johnson brought the triple option from Navy in 2008. Rarely do the Yellow Jackets employ the forward pass. The offense is predictable and still terribly difficult to stop.

For the Terrapins, Saturday's game in Atlanta marks the beginning of a brutal and telling three-game stretch that also includes a home game against No. 8 Clemson and a road trip to No. 23 Florida State.

"I think we're trying to carve out who we are as a team," sophomore quarterback Danny O'Brien said. "I don't think we've answered it yet." DEREK TURNER

EAGLES (MINUS 12.5) AT BILLS

BILLS
Wouldn't it be great if the Eagles are this year's Redskins?

EAGLES
There's a reason the Iglesias are favored in this game.

BILLS
The "Dream Team" needs an "Inception"-style intervention. Won't happen this week.

EAGLES
Worse crime: losing a lead to Cincinnati on the road, or to San Francisco at home?

RAIDERS (PLUS 6) AT TEXANS

comfortable. Their houses were drafty, cold and appallingly ill-lit. It's only in the last 100 years or so that the idea of all of this comfort at our disposal has come.

“For most of time, most people were not very good at making themselves comfortable.”

So as the world changes, so do houses?

Most of the mechanics of living in the house haven't changed. No matter how much lifestyles change, how much technology takes us into new places, we're conservative about our houses. A doorknob has not changed in hundreds of years, and windows open the same way they did 250 years ago.

So how are houses going to change in upcoming years?

There will be change in terms of flat-screen televisions, entertainment systems and communications systems, but I imagine they will all be incorporated into a house that would be fundamentally the same as houses that we live in now.

OK, you can live in the White House, Monticello or Mount Vernon — which would you take?

Monticello is the greatest house ever built. The fact that it's on a hilltop at a time when nobody built houses on hilltops, Thomas Jefferson was unique in that. What a visionary to think to have a view when you step out of French windows! But Mount Vernon is one of the most comfortable houses ever. Two of the best houses in America were built by presidents in their spare time. That's amazing!

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

I would be happy to wear cruelty-free shoes, but I can't find many non-ugly ones except for my Converse Chuck Taylors. Are any of the newer "vegan leathers" any good? In my experience, fake leather is sweaty plastic that cracks and peels. I know about Stella McCartney's vegan shoes, but they're way, way out of my price range. Can you help out a shoe lover who would like to transition to a leather-free wardrobe? — JILL

Manolo says the short answer is no, the Manolo is of little or no help when it comes to finding the good-looking vegan shoes. And, the long answer, it is also no, or perhaps nooooooooooooooooooooooo.

Finding the vegan shoes, like the Stella McCartney vegan shoes, that are both stylish and not made from the recycled plastic waste is one of the most impossible of tasks for the shoe lover. It is because, of course, from the beginning of time, leather has always been the material most perfectly suited for the shoes. It is inexpensive, handsome, pliable and durable. It is also moderately weatherproof and practical for most climates, and capable of being worked into beautiful forms.

But the Manolo understands that there are those who object to the manner in which the leather is obtained, and so here is the Key West, the good-looking sandal from the vegan shoe specialist olsenHaus ($140, Endless.com), the shoes that may be what you are looking for.

The Reelist

'The Ides of March' is well directed and acted, but clings too closely to dated ideals

Film Review

An Imaginable Loss
Charlie Sheen stopped being funny to me long ago. And I'm talking "immediately after 'Major League 2,'" not "when he clearly completely lost his marbles." When he turned into a sideshow, watching him became something I simply couldn't do, much as I can't watch other sideshow performers shove nails up their noses. For all intents and purposes, I stopped thinking about Charlie Sheen altogether.

And then I saw "The Way," out Friday in select theaters. In it, Martin Sheen — Charlie's dad — plays a man who loses his son, played by Charlie's brother, Emilio Estevez. The film first serves as a reminder that Martin Sheen can really, really act. But it might also be seen as a predictor. The film was shot in 2009, before Charlie's crazy circus act, so I wouldn't say that Martin's performance was affected by all the tiger blood and the winning. But watching Tom, Martin's character, identify his son's body, I couldn't help but think, "That's what he's going to look like when Charlie dies. That's what Martin Sheen looks like when he loses his boy."

This movie deserves publicity that doesn't come from Charlie Sheen's implosion; it's moving and funny and an international showcase of outstanding performances. But Martin's performance is so heartbreaking, so utterly devastating, that you have to hope it's not a preview of things to come.

'Human Centipede II' is more disturbing than its predecessor

Film Review

Warning: This movie — and the review — is not for the faint of heart.

How do you even begin to review a movie like "The Human Centipede II (Full Sequence)"? Perhaps by clarifying that there really is no other movie on Earth quite like it. And that's including "The Human Centipede: First Sequence," the 2009 horror film on which this dismal, nauseating sequel is based.

a way, considering the sheer offensiveness of the concept, which was presented with an appropriate dollop of silliness on top of a deadpan foundation.

Shot by returning auteur Tom Six in a high-contrast, black-and-white style that is both grimy and, oddly, photogenic, the sequel follows Martin (Laurence R. Harvey), a disturbed parking garage attendant who is obsessed with the first "Centipede" film. Martin is a copycat criminal and intends to replicate the procedure in the first film — this time after amassing a dozen subjects, including the three actors who played the first film's victims.

Real Steel (PG-13)

► Director: Shawn Levy
► Stars: Hugh Jackman, Evangeline Lilly and Dakota Goyo

► In a Nutshell: Set in the future, when robot boxing is a top sport, a struggling promoter mounts a comeback and discovers he has a son.

The problem is, Charlie isn't very good at it. In short order, he has a truck full of broken robot parts and a long list of angry creditors, who include his landlord and former girlfriend (Evangeline Lilly).

Making matters worse is the sudden appearance in Charlie's life of Max (Dakota Goyo), Charlie's 11-year-old son. Max's mother has just died, leaving the boy temporarily in Charlie's custody.

This sets the stage for two things. On the one hand, it's the redemption of Charlie's career, courtesy of Max, a whiz kid who turns out to be far better at the battle-bot biz than his dad. On the other hand, it's a rapprochement of sorts between the estranged father and his son. Both threads center on Max's efforts to restore and train a battered robot that he finds in a junkyard. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

The answer: your 11-year-old son. He and his middle-school cronies will, in all likelihood, love the crunch of CGI metal on metal and the whole video-game aesthetic.

Everyone else? Not so much.

This, despite the presence of human actor Hugh Jackman in the role of Charlie Kenton, a washed-up boxer who, when the movie opens, is eking out a meager living by entering fighting 'bots in matches against, say, rodeo bulls.

50/50 (R, 100 minutes) "50/50" doesn't seek to pretty up the grim realities of cancer; it offers a refreshingly frank glimpse of a world too often distorted by Hollywood for its own ends, with Joseph Gordon-Levitt's even-tempered Adam serving as the ideal guide through both its terrors and improbable gifts. Chief among a fatal illness' unexpected silver linings, "50/50" suggests, are the friends and loved ones who show up, however inexpertly. The most clumsy by far is Adam's best friend, Kyle (Seth Rogen), who battles his own panic by deciding to turn Adam's disease into a babe magnet. The question of just who, if anyone, will truly show up for Adam turns out to be the fulcrum of "50/50," a movie that barely makes filmgoers notice that they've come to care deeply, not only about whether Adam makes it, but for the friends he makes in chemo, too. Considering that any one of those elements could have scuttled its fragile mix of drama, comedy and life-and-death stakes, "50/50" beats the odds with modest, utterly winning ease. A.H.

CONTAGION (PG-13, 102 minutes) Before this movie is over, you will stop unconsciously touching your face. The script — which is reportedly based on solid scientific research about disease and its transmission, treatment and control — is admirably unsensational. And that's even considering the fact that the virus at the heart of the story has a shorter and more lethal incubation period than anything we've previously seen. Gwyneth Paltrow, whose Beth Emhoff is the first to come down with the new disease, is dead minutes into the movie. Hundreds of millions of victims follow, though Beth's husband, Mitch, played by a schlubby-looking Matt Damon, remains immune. Along with his teenage daughter (Anna Jacoby-Heron), Mitch spends most of the movie sensibly holed up inside his house, as the world around him descends into a chaos of looting and Internet-fueled panic. M.O.

DOLPHIN TALE (PG, 113 minutes) Winter the dolphin was 3 months old when crab nets entangled her off the shores of Florida's Gulf coastline. Marine biologists rescued Winter and nursed her back to health, but not before they had to surgically remove her badly damaged tail. The operation that saved Winter's life actually created fresh problems. By running Winter's unique biography through the conventional Hollywood filter, Smith reduces "Dolphin Tale" to "Old Yeller" with a blowhole. Morgan Freeman appears as Dr. McCarthy, an engineer of prosthetic limbs who custom-designs an artificial tail for Winter. The real star, of course, is Winter, who plays herself and rightfully steals every scene. SEAN O'CONNELL DRIVE (R, 100 minutes) Ryan Gosling delivers a slow, white-hot burn of a performance in this nervy, understated ode to one of Hollywood's most cherished archetypes, the sad-eyed man of few words. Gosling and director Nicolas Winding Refn neatly manage the hat trick of paying homage to wheelmen of yore while reinvigorating the genre with style, smarts and flashes of wit. Refn, a Danish director, is known for his love of blood, and when the plot of "Drive" quickens, he finds plenty of chances to indulge in his penchant for lurid, stylized violence. But even his most fetishized flourishes are tempered here. Low-key, sleek and sophisticated, "Drive" provides the visceral pleasures of pulp without sacrificing art. A.H.

THE HELP (PG-13, 137 minutes) Fans of Kathryn Stockett's folksy, ingratiating novel of the same name can rest easy: The director, Tate Taylor, has preserved the book's story line, characters and confiding tone with loyalty worthy of any best friend. Readers who felt they came to intimately know characters such as Celia (Jessica Chastain) and Skeeter (Emma Stone) are likely to greet their alter egos on-screen like cherished, long-lost friends—especially the nobly suffering Aibileen. Skeeter gets a job as a newspaper cleaning-advice columnist, but when she asks Aibileen for some tips, she realizes that the real story lies in the emotional lives of black women who virtually raise their white employers' children, but who are treated by those same families as unfit to share a kitchen utensil, much less political or economic power. A.H.

KILLER ELITE (R. 115 minutes) In this simultaneously silly and overwrought action thriller, Jason Statham plays

Danny Bryce, a professional assassin with a soft spot. Living with blood on his hands seems pretty easy for Danny, despite his decision to get out of the business after almost blowing a little girl's head off. After a mere year's vacation, however, Danny's back in the game when he learns that an Arab sheik has taken his BFF and former partner Hunter (Robert De Niro) hostage. It seems that Hunter is being used as leverage to get Danny to carry out one last assignment. Keep in mind that all this is just the setup. As it turns out, Danny's special-ops victims had been taking orders from a shadowy fellow who gets his marching orders from a bunch of even more shadowy fellows. Needless to say, they want Danny dead. We've got another portmanteau word for the movie: unbelieveballistic. M.O.

MONEYBALL (PG-13, 133 minutes) Filmmaker Bennett Miller barely puts a foot wrong in bringing to life the tale of Oakland A's general manager Billy Beane. In 2002, Beane (Brad Pitt) sought to rebuild the slumping A's and revolutionize baseball recruiting using "Sabermetrics." Miller has done a superb job of underplaying Pitt's native magnetism, which nonetheless peeks out enough to dazzle Yale-educated computer whiz Peter Brand (Jonah Hill, playing a character based on Paul DePodesta). "Moneyball" makes viewers root not only for Beane and Brand, but for their motley crew of castoffs. It's difficult to review "Moneyball" without using the term "home run." So let's just say that it rounds all the bases with grace, modesty and a surfeit of heart. A.H.

RESTLESS (PG-13, 95 minutes) Mia Wasikowska and Henry Hopper manage to deliver distinctive performances here as wise, troubled teenagers given to morbid humor, quirky sensibilities and a penchant for taking a tasteless joke too far. So it's fitting that Annabel (Wasikowska) and Enoch (Hopper) would meet at a funeral: Enoch likes to hover around the edges of strangers' memorial services, one of which Annabel is attending. They embark on a friendship and fledgling romance that's alternately touching and insufferably glib. The revelation here is Hopper, who plays Enoch with an understatement and vulnerability all his own. A.H.

WARRIOR (PG-13, 139 minutes) Judging from its poster, "Warrior" should be just another slab of lunkhead cinema. Don't be fooled. Tom Hardy plays Tommy, a black-sheep son with a father (played by Nick Nolte) so abusive that he and his mother fled to the other side of the country. Tommy's brother Brendan (Joel Edgerton), meanwhile, stayed at home to be near his sweetheart. They're now married with kids, and although they have three jobs between them, they're financially underwater. Independently of each other, these sons of a violent home discover an opportunity to turn aggression into cash: In Atlantic City, the Sparta tournament will pit mixed-martial-arts combatants against one another for a $5 million prize. JOHN DEFORE

WHAT'S YOUR NUMBER? (R, 106 minutes) The premise of "What's Your Number?" is statistical. After breaking up with Rick—Ally's 19th lover—Ally (Anna Faris) reads in a women's magazine that most women who have had 20 or more sex partners will never get married. Panicking, Ally vows to stay celibate until she can dig up as many of her exes as possible, hoping that one of them has turned into the man of her dreams. Assisting Ally is her neighbor Colin, a sweet but seemingly commitmentphobic hottie. This should tell you a lot. M.O.

1 Power of Two

No matter how punk you are, you secretly love the Indigo Girls. Amy Ray, shown left, and Emily Saliers, right, have been recording their acoustic protest music since the 1980s — and aside from their being a touchstone of lesbian culture, no college graduation or eyes-closed campfire sing-along would be the same without them. Music Center at Strathmore, 5301 Tuckerman Lane, North Bethesda; Sun., 7 p.m., $45-$55; 301-581-5100, Strathmore.org. ## 2 Some Kind Of Wonderful

Stevie Wonder dance parties two weekends in a row? Let's see how long we can keep up this streak. This week's (which is called Wonder-Full, because, of course, it is) is at Liv and is curated by DJ Spinna, who is one of those underground DJs who you really should know if you love to boogie. He's put out several albums, and recently he's been metropolis-hopping with his Stevie Wonder sets. Liv, 2001 11th St. NW; Sat., 10 p.m., $20, $15 in advance; 202-299-0800, Livdc.com. ## 3 Emo Electronica

James Blake got famous as a dubstep DJ, so it makes sense that his own music would include elements of electronica. His original songs and covers of ballads such as Feist's "Limit to Your Love" are slow and digitally swirly, with lots of echo and reverb. Those two effects would normally just make us think of terrible '80s synthesizers, but here they evoke the emptiness inherent in human existence and the sadness that always accompanies love. 9:30 Club, 815 V St. NW; Sun., 7 p.m., $25; 202-265-0930, 930.com. # Limited 'Engagement'

A CBS sitcom opens its sixth season in a dubious time slot

Comedy

SAT 8:00 CBS' "Rules of Engagement" begins its sixth season on Saturday. That may come as a surprise to millions — the millions who have never watched or heard of it and the millions who wonder why any series would kick off its new season on the least-watched night of the week.

Hardly the worst sitcom on television, "Rules" seems like a throw-back. Its story about a long-married couple, a fresh young couple and a delusional "player" may remind some of "How I Met Your Mother," but its jokes seem more vintage.

Characters often meet to swap stories at a local diner, not unlike some better-known comedies of the "Seinfeld" era. And the presence of Patrick Warburton (Puddy on "Seinfeld") and "SNL" regular David Spade gives it a decidedly '90s feel.

Few shows have moved around as often as "Rules." It began as a midseason replacement and returned as one in its second, third and fourth seasons. It had a full fifth season but was moved from Monday to Thursday night midway. Now it airs as a Saturday night sitcom, the first new one to air regularly on this night in six years.

Nikita

(CW) Nikita (Maggie Q, left, with Shane West) is dismayed to learn that Ramon (Simon Kassianides), a terrorist she captured years ago, is now working for Division. Then she clashes with Amanda (Melinda Clarke), who plans to have Alex (Lyndsy Fonseca) kill a man and let Ramon take credit for the murder in the new episode, "Knightfall."

FRI 10:00

Sanctuary (SYFY) With the arrival of Hollow Earth refugees, the balance between Abnormals and humans is severely upset. To keep the peace, Magnus and her team must throw out the rule book — and now they have world governments and new villains nipping at their heels.

SUN 10:00

Breaking Bad (AMC) Walt (Bryan Cranston, shown) and Jesse gang up on Gus as the drama series' fourth season winds down, while Saul helps Walt connect with an unexpected ally.

SUN 10:01

Pan Am (ABC) When the crew flies to Berlin with journalists who are covering an important speech by President John F. Kennedy, Maggie (Christina Ricci), a hard-core JFK supporter, is determined to meet him. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

Drama

Killers in Arms

Hoping to solve a mysterious and unusually macabre murder on "Dexter" (Sun., 9 p.m., Sho), the homicide division brings in Brother Sam (Mos Def, shown), a minister with a criminal past, to try to help. But when Dexter (Michael C. Hall) meets the newcomer, he recognizes him not as a man of God but as a fellow killer with what he sees as a brilliant cover. Debra (Jennifer Carpenter), meanwhile, receives two potentially life-changing proposals. (TM)

Blog Log

"Steve and I first met nearly 30 years ago and have been colleagues, competitors and friends over the course of more than half our lives. The world rarely sees someone who has had the profound impact Steve has had, the effects of which will be felt for many generations to come. For those of us lucky enough to get to work with him, it's been an insanely great honor. I will miss Steve immensely."

— BILL GATES, co-founder of Microsoft, issued a statement on Wednesday after Apple's Steve Jobs died of pancreatic cancer.

"Yeah, but he's gonna have to accept the fact that there's no surgery which will enable him to fly faster than a speeding bullet and leap tall buildings in a single bound."

— A COMMENTER AT ABCNEWS.GO.COM/BLOGS reacts to the story of Herbert Chavez, a Filipino man who's been undergoing plastic surgeries since 1995 to look more like Christopher Reeves as Superman.

"This could only happen under Comcast rule, because former NBC chief Jeff Zucker probably never would have let Conan O'Brien inside 30 Rockefeller Plaza, let alone up the elevators to appear on camera."

— THECOMICS COMIC.COM was surprised to see O'Brien make an appearance Wednesday on "Late Night With Jimmy Fallon" — the show that replaced his own show on NBC.

"Join the parking revolution, people — everyone is paying by phone these days. ... It's truly a brave new world out there when it comes to parking."

— DCIST.COM notes that nearly 100,000 people have signed up for Parkmobile, a mobile parking meter service that launched in July.

"Entourage or not, she was a brave person to ride the Jubilee line for her gig, as it's well known for breaking down. ... Rihanna may spark off a revolution in the mode of transport for mega stars."

— PIENBISCUITS.WORDPRESS.COM was stunned to see photos of the pop star and taking the train to her sold-out show at the O2 Arena in London on Wednesday.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You are not always known for your humorous outlook, but today there is so much going on around you that will make you want to laugh.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) The time has come for you to set aside your pre-conceptions about a certain endeavor, and just jump in — you'll have all the help you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Whether it's a good day or a bad day by another's standards, you will find much to cheer as it rolls along.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Yes and no will both figure prominently today — but you may look back and realize that at no time were you saying maybe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Physical fatigue is likely to take its toll if you are not careful to give yourself the kind of rest you need — and deserve.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) A vague idea becomes something much more concrete by day's end — and you may even be able to attract much-needed financial support.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Support and good humor — those are both things you really need as you head into an area that is relatively unknown to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may want things to progress too quickly, when in fact a slower pace will allow you to make the most of what is really going on.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may realize what you are doing for another is really being done for yourself — though this is not selfishness, but necessity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have much to look forward to, but take care that you're not so focused on the future that you ignore what is going on right now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have to continue your efforts well into the night, but you're confident the rewards that come to you as a result will be worth it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Many do what you are doing merely for their own short-term enjoyment — but you're doing it for someone else, and for long-term gains.

A NONFATTENING PUZZLE

Samurai Sudoku

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.
